- On 25.09.2024, the Institute's website shared the statement made by Beate Rudolf, Director of the Institute, regarding the ongoing discussions on tightening immigration and security laws in Germany. In her statement, Rudolf stated that anyone who gives the impression that turning away people seeking protection would lead to increased security in Germany is putting Germany's democratic culture at risk. Rudolf also stated that the tightening of immigration and security laws, which is the subject of discussion, creates a permanent pressure on social coexistence and risks disproportionately restricting fundamental and human rights.
